Edinburgh Diamond

Edinburgh Diamond, part of the Edinburgh University Library, is a Diamond OA service provision which supports the publication of both books and journals by academic, staff and students at the University of Edinburgh. It began in 2009 but relaunched and grew notably in 2021, as a result of demand from academics.

It is entirely separate from Edinburgh University Press (although one board member of Edinburgh Diamond is an EUP staff member). It also provides information resources on book and journal publishing and on hosting and publishing services using open infrastructure. It has provided a venue for several University of Edinburgh academics, staff and students to publish their work.
